Comparison of different labeling techniques in pig models. There are several techniques for autoradiographic visualization of radioiodine-labeled materials in vivo. The most frequently used method is the use of nonspecific labeling with serum albumin to which radioactive iodine is covalently bound. However, some complications can occur, namely severe kidney damage and liver damage in tumor models. A recent alternative is the use of iodinated methyltyrosine (IMT), a small iodinated peptide which is specifically taken up by the thyroid. In this paper, we compare [125I]IMT-in vivo labeled peripheral blood mononuclear cells and [125I]IMT in liver, kidneys, thyroid, and lymph nodes after intravenous injection. The results show that a far better labeling is obtained with peripheral blood mononuclear cells in comparison to other organs in this model.Church Eighteen years ago, Frank Miller and Alan Moore stormed the heart of the comic book business with "Sin City," a 12-issue comic book series that mapped out a rough-and-tumble love affair in a hardscrabble town set in the desert. We're probably going to see a sprinkling of rain on Sunday, and that is just fine with me. I like a good storm. It's part of my beauty-loving nature, even if it creates a flood. I like the burst of sound it makes, the waterfalls of sheet lightning spilling their light into the sky.
